STATE OF WISCONSIN. THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION. BY THE GOVERNOR.

Since the early days of the Republic it has been the grateful pleasure and custom of the people to assemble once a year, and by thanksgiving, praise and feasting, render unto the Giver of All Good a sincere expression of great gratitude for His unsparing care and goodness.

Now, therefore, I, William D. Hoard, governor of the state of Wisconsin, in conformity with this most fitting custom, and by proclamation of the president of the United States, do appoint Thursday, November 26th, 1890, as a day of thanksgiving.

I furthermore recommend that on that day the people of Wisconsin abstain from all labor and give thanks to Almighty God, by appropriate exercises in their places of worship and their homes, for the abundant mercies which we have received at His hands in the past year.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of Wisconsin to be affixed. Done at the capital, in [Great Seal] Madison, this 7th day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand, eight hundred and eighty-nine.

WILLIAM D. HOARD.

By the Governor:
ERNST G. TIRRE, Secretary of State.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE SPOILS.

Very recently Mr. Chauncy M. Depew, one of the brightest men living today in this country, gave the New York Tribune in a very concrete form, the effect of the spoils system on political parties. There are some points in his statements that are very suggestive, and are worthy of being repeated:

"It is a bed-rock fact, which experience in the past proves that the patronage falling into the hands of a party upon a complete change of administration never fails in the year succeeding the change to be a source of weakness rather than strength to the party in power. The distribution of that patronage, irrespective of any other issue involved, tends to create unpopularity for the administration. The congenital or natural strength which a sufficient appointment as secured is strengthened by the support of the officeholders, and this is felt in the district conditions, but the party at large loses votes. There are about 150 Consulates at the disposal of the president. There were 2,000 applicants for positions. At the New York custom house there are 1,500 places, of which about one-third may be available for party rewards. There were 25,000 who wanted these places. It is the numberless little village. It is an important post, but it is generally held by a storekeeper to whom custom is drawn by the appointment. There are six storekeepers in a place all working to get the benefit of the trade that goes to the postmaster. The man who gets the appointment works hard for the congressman who secured it for him, but the five other men are disappointed, and either neglect to vote for the party at the next election or vote for the opposite side. Who, then, is secured for the distinction of patronage?—yes, five votes are driven away. I am not now suggesting the remedy; I am simply calling attention to a bottom party fact."

Mr. Depew is no doubt wise in his testimony as to the bearings of the spoils system on both political parties, but the remedy he could not give. No man has yet been able to suggest a practical remedy. When Mr. George William Curtis, the most bitter enemy of the time, of the spoils system, was a member of the civil service commission, he likewise failed to provide a remedy, although he has been kicking ever since against the policy which gives the offices of the victors in a national election.

There is, as every intelligent person will admit, more or less of a demoralizing influence connected with the scramble for office. There is not a congressman or a senator who has not felt the humiliation of being forced to hunt places for his constituents; and Senator Sherman is reported to have lately said the distribution of patronage had cost him the presidency, so numerous were the enemies it had made for him. The testimony of all congressmen and senators is that the distribution of patronage costs them more trouble and work than all other work connected with their official position; so to them, the banishment of the spoils system would be a glorious release from a very unpleasant responsibility.

The Christian Union, speaking of the degradation of public life in place holders, says:

"It is clear that the spoils system is a hindrance to political success, and an enemy to the prosperity of every political party. It helps none but that set of our policies, the local 'bosses.' No body wants it—not even the politicians. It is a disgrace to the country, a source of corruption, a foe to capable and efficient government. The president has it in his power to lay the ax to this deadly upstart in his coming message to congress. Will he be equal to this opportunity of rendering the country a noble service and giving his administration the stamp of statesmanship?"

Whatever may be said of the corrupting influence of the spoils system on the political life of the nation, it cannot be charged that it is a "foe to capable and efficient government," for it is a matter of fact that there is no country in all Europe that has a more capable and efficient government than the United States. There is a marvelous efficiency in the organization and management of the three great departments of the government—the treasury, the post office department, and the judiciary—so that in these the corrupting influence of the spoils system does not make itself felt in the practical workings of the government.

But, of course, it would be better if things were not as they are painted by the press. We are entirely satisfied with the result.

Virginia democrats are discussing the advisability of adopting the Australian ballot law for their state. This is a good omen. Give the people of Virginia a honest ballot, and the republicans will be entirely satisfied with the result.

PERISHED IN A MINE FIRE

TERrible DISASTER IN A MONTANA SHAFT.

The Number of Dead Yet Unknown—Roasted in a Gas Fire—Philippine Firemen in Peril.

Butte, Montana, Nov. 25.—Fire is raging in the Anaconda copper mine. It burst out Saturday morning in the cross cut of the 1st shaft. Numerous miners were drafted into the spruce houses inside the Anaconda, and a pernicious blaze soon developed in the 800 foot level of the latter. Several men were at work here and it is believed that nearly all have perished. Besides these four men lost their lives in trying to effect a rescue.

A LESSON WORTH LEARNING.

WICHITA, Mass., Nov. 22.—J. E. Weeks, of the Weeks Manufacturing Company of the city, manufacturer of woolen goods, assigned yesterday for the benefit of his creditors. In a published statement Mr. Weeks attributes his failure to the discrimination made by the late Secretary Manning on the classification of piece-dyed wools. He says that prior to 1886 the company did a good business, but American wools declined in price after the departmental act, as imported worsted came under light duties, and the demand for the article practically ceased. The mill has eighty-nine looms and employs 175 hands.

It will cause republicans to do some smiling to know that the Chicago Tribune uses the foregoing dispatch as an argument that an important reduction of the tariff on any one article manufactured in this country will materially injure or completely destroy the production of that article. It is quite significant to see such an enthusiastic free trade paper as the Tribune has been, wisely using a tariff object lesson of that kind, and some facts connected with the lesson are given:

"The ruling of Secretary Manning cuts down the duty on the class of goods which this Worcester firm was manufacturing about half, and threw on the American market foreign goods offered for a lower price than the home manufacturer could afford to sell his products for with the existing rate of wages."

It stands to reason that if the American markets were flooded with a certain kind of goods made in Europe—made by labor which cost only half as much as the same kind of labor in the United States—the American manufacturers would be compelled to either reduce their scale of wages to correspond with the European scale, or shut down just as the Worcester firm did. Applying the principle of tariff reduction to all the manufacturers of woolen goods including carpet, and to all kinds of iron manufactures, and the fate which fell upon the Wick's manufacturing company, would fall upon them.

Ex-Mayor John A. Roche, of Chicago, who was here recently to give a lecture on the new law, added, "that is very comprehensive and far-reaching. It was passed to cover the case of the anarchists. It was never proved at the trial of the anarchist's just who threw the fatal bomb on the night of the Haymarket riot. It was shown that Parsons was in his home with his family, nearly a mile away when the bomb was thrown. He disappeared, however, and got another job, but acting under the advice of his lawyers he returned and gave himself up. They did not think it would be possible to connect him with the crime, and yet Parsons was convicted and hanged. This will show you something of the sweeping character of the new law. Under it every man who can be proved to have had even a remote connection with Cronin's taking off, can be convicted of murder in the first degree. The law may seem harsh, but it is very wholesome in its effects."

Mr. Depew is no doubt wise in his testimony as to the bearings of the spoils system on both political parties, but the remedy he could not give. No man has yet been able to suggest a practical remedy.

When Mr. George William Curtis, the most bitter enemy of the time, of the spoils system, was a member of the civil service commission, he likewise failed to provide a remedy, although he has been kicking ever since against the policy which gives the offices of the victors in a national election.

No body wants it—not even the politicians.

It is a disgrace to the country, a source of corruption, a foe to capable and efficient government.

Besides those named Jack Lyons will die, and a dozen others are under the doctor's care. It is practically certain that as many as nine were killed.

The shaft of the Anaconda is bulkheaded so that miners can get in.

AS it is believed that the carbonic acid gas which will necessarily be generated in the confined space will eventually put it out.

The cage has extended to the workings of the Anaconda, not no one known to have been taken to the bottom of the shaft.

But for the generalship of Superintendent Carroll, who directed the men to bulkhead the avenues, the whole interior of the mines with their immense underground ramifications would be a mass of seething smoke.

THE surface grounds for a couple of square miles have been leveled.

It is one of the mines can form the exact conception of the extent of the damage, and it may be weeks before it is safe to open the mines again.

SEVEN PEOPLE TERRIBLY BURNED.

A Child Roasted to Death in Its Mother's Arms—Others Will Die.

MEDICAL SPRINGS, Barton County, Mo., Nov. 25.—Seven people were terribly burned in a child's cradle, in a most peculiar accident, on Sunday afternoon. From one of the wells which had been bored near the spring for the purpose of reaching a better supply of water, there is a constant flow of natural gas. The proprietor has piped this gas and uses it for the purpose of making a display to attract attention to the spring. From the pipe, which is open, extends a vertical pipe and to this is connected a horizontal pipe for a distance of about twenty feet, where it is bent at right angles with the arm, extending about ten feet in the air. From the pipe a flame burns to the height of about ten feet. On Sunday afternoons the place is generally crowded with people who come to see all and point to my fast growing trade as a guarantee that my prices will be right and
